BLUE BOLT FLASHES

THE READERS WRITE:

NO COMMENT NEEDED HERE

Dear Editors:

The March issue of BLUE BOLT was the first BLUE BOLT I ever read, and believe me, it will be the last. I can't stand reading such trash.

I especially hate "Dick Cole." You can't tell me that this kid is so good. I also hate "Blue Bolts and Nuts," because the jokes are so crazy. I could make up better jokes in my sleep. "Edison Bell" is one of the puniest sissies I ever read about.

Well, I could go on telling the bad things about these stories all year, but I don't want to hurt your feelings. If you ever want any information, just write to me. I know just about everything.

Signed,
Raymond Nelson

BLUE BOLT SELLS IN A HURRY

Dear Sirs:

At our local newsstand, BLUE BOLT is not in for three hours before they are gone. The reason for its popularity is because it is an educational comic rather than a fantastic one, as are most others.

"Dick Cole," "Sergeant Spook," and the Q's and A's are tops. But, how about having more practical diagrams on the "Edison Bell Invention Page?"

A Faithful Reader,
James Butler
Jersey City, N. J.

HELPFUL HINTS ARE WELCOME

Dear Editors:

I have been reading BLUE BOLT books for a long time. They are my favorite comic books. "Dick Cole" is the best in your book, and "Edison Bell" is second. All are good except "Krisen and Jasper," because the faces do not seem realistic.

I read your February issue and I enjoyed it very much. I also think the artist does a very poor job of making characters' faces. I think they should be improved somewhat, so the readers will enjoy your book better.

I don't mean to criticize your book, because I was trying to give some helpful hints to improve your book.

Sincerely yours,
George Lewis Gross
Griffiths, Ill., Ark.

A LOYAL FAN WRITES

Dears Sirs:

I am 14 years of age, and I still find BLUE BOLT very enjoyable. When I was a small boy, I used to buy one comic book a week. My favorite was then, and still is, BLUE BOLT.

I have had many enjoyable times, answering the questions of Q's and A's, and asking them to classmates at school. I like all of your comic characters, and can't find fault with any of them. Just keep the book the way it is and you'll always be on the top of my list of favorites.

A True Reader,
Robert Modell
Brooklyn, N. Y.

BLUE BOLT WAS NAMED AFTER "BLUE BOLT"

Dear Editors:

I have read many a comic book, but the one that I prefer is BLUE BOLT. My favorite characters are "Dick Cole," "Sergeant Spook," and "Edison Bell." Although I enjoy BLUE BOLT, I have a question that cannot be answered by any of my friends. This question is: Why is this comic called BLUE BOLT? I would like to know the answer to this question that neither me or my friends have been able to answer.

Yours truly,
Beatrice Valera
Houston, Tex.

RICK RICHARDS IS "IN"

Dear Editors:

I have just finished reading your new issue of BLUE BOLT, and I liked it very much. I think substituting "Rick Richards" for "Fearless Fellers" was a good idea.

I especially like Edison Bell's inventions, because I always try to make them.

You have a swell book on your hands.

Yours truly,
Richard Morzezh
Chicago, Ill.

BLUE BOLT OPENS THE DOOR

Dear Editors:

As a devoted reader, I want to tell you I like BLUE BOLT. First, because it has realistic adventures, all except "Krisen and Jasper," and second, because of its fine artwork. Some day, I would like to be on the BLUE BOLT art staff, and have a comic character of my own.

As a whole, all I have to say is, "Open the door, Richard, and let BLUE BOLT in."

A Devoted Reader,
Alvin Smith
Gary, Ind.

A WELCOME LETTER FROM A TEEN-AGER

Dear Editors:

My brothers have been reading BLUE BOLT since as long as I can remember. They were the first to introduce me to it, and now I'm mighty glad they did. I've read about every comic book on the market, and I'll stand by BLUE BOLT every time. There just isn't any comparison!

"My favorite is "Dick Cole," because he's so clean-cut, so all-around American. "Rick Richards" is swell, too, and the "Questions and Answers" are tops!

Our whole family has agreed that BLUE BOLT can't be beat. Please keep up the good work.

I do wish you could find space for a pen-pal list, though. I'd love to hear from fellows and girls around my age, nineteen—through your "super" magazine.

Very sincerely yours,

Lorraine Anita Genberg
Engelwood, N. J.

P.S.—See, even the older teen-agers like BLUE BOLT.

ANOTHER PLUG FOR RICK RICHARDS

Dear Editors:

I think putting "Rick Richards" in a comic strip was a very good idea. He's different from the others, although, I have nothing against the others, but every time Dick Cole does something, there are always some jealous men in the strip like Bark Hall.

My teacher said you can learn from the written answers on the bottom of the pages.

"Sergeant Spook" is very interesting, but I think Jerry should have a dog with him so the dog could help them out.

DICK COLE

DICK COLE, WINNER OF LAST YEAR'S CROSS-COUNTRY RACE BETWEEN FARR MILITARY ACADEMY AND HOLDEN MILITARY ACADEMY, IS FAVORED TO REPEAT HIS VICTORY TOMORROW. BUT DICK'S ROOMMATE, SIMBA KARNO, HAS A FEW QUESTIONS TO ASK DICK ABOUT HIS METHODS OF TRAINING.

ART BY JIM WILSON

HAH... THE GREAT COLE! BEEN TRAINING SOME MORE FOR CROSS-COUNTRY BY PRACTICING THE HIGH JUMP?

YOU TRAINING FOR THAT HISTORY EXAM BY STUDYING UP ON BULLFIGHTING, DON'T SIMBA?

FARR

TOO BAD YOU DON'T KNOW SOMETHING ABOUT BULLS. YOU'LL BE THE GOAT TOMORROW WHEN YOU'RE UP AGAINST WILL VEL'E. I HEAR HE'S BEEN TRAINING BY RUNNING... NOT JUMPING!

DO TELL TOREADOR KARNO. IF I LOSE TOMORROW, WILL YOU GIVE ME A FEW PONTERS ON THROWING THE BULL?

Q^{UESTION} No. 1. Which of the constellations is known familiarly as "The Bull"?

NEXT AFTERNOON, THE FARR AND HOLDEN RUNNERS TAKE THEIR PLACES FOR THE HISTORIC CROSS-COUNTRY RACE.

DON'T FORGET, WILL, WHEN THAT BULL CHASES DICK, YOU KEEP RIGHT ON UP THE ROAD. COLE WON'T GET HURT.

YEAH, NICK, I HOPE YOU ARE RIGHT.

I'LL JUST STICK WITH THE CROWD AND SAVE MY BREATH UNTIL LATER WHEN VELIE STARTS TO TAKE THE LEAD.

AFTER A FEW MILES, DICK AND WILL BEGIN TO PULL AWAY FROM THE PACK.

COLE... HE'S STICKING WITH ME. THAT'S FINE... UNTIL WE MEET THAT BULL!

QUESTION No. 2. Of what lovable fictional character does Oscar remind you?

THE BULL SMASHES THROUGH THE BARBED-WIRE FENCE AND, MADDENED BY THE PAIN OF THE BARBS RIPPING HIS HIDE, IS FURTHER ENRAGED AT THE SIGHT OF VELIE'S CRIMSON SHIRT.

HEY, WILL !
WATCH OUT FOR THAT BULL !
IT'S ON THE WARPATH !

YOU'RE NOT KIDDIN' !
HEAVE SOME ROCKS AT HIM,
COLE !

SAY, BOSS !
WHAT'S GOT

THAT BULL WILL KILL WILL UNLESS
I CAN DISTRACT
HIM !

AS THE BULL BACKS OFF FOR ANOTHER CHARGE, DICK RACES AROUND HIM.

FRANTICALLY, DICK RIPS THE SHIRT FROM WILL VELIE.

DICK WHEELS AROUND JUST IN TIME ... AND ...

THE ENRAGED BEAST CHARGES THE CRIMSON SHIRT.

WHEW! IT WORKED! HE CHARGED THE RED SHIRT INSTEAD OF ME!

DICK! I...I CAN'T STAND UP! MY LEFT LEG.. IT'S NUMB!

YELL FOR HELP, WILL. I'LL KEEP THE BULL GOING AS LONG AS I CAN! HERE HE COMES AGAIN!

MEANWHILE, FARMER ROSS AND LINK HAVE HURRIED TO THE BARN TO GET ROPE AND A PITCHFORK.

THEM KIDS! THEIR SCHOOLSLL BE ON MY NECK IF ANYTHING HAPPENS TO 'EM!

THERE'LL BE TWO FUNERALS IF WE DON'T GET THERE QUICK!

QUESTION No. 1. In which opera is the hero a bullfighter: La Traviata, Carmen, Don Giovanni?

THE BULL WHEELS AGAIN TO CHARGE DICK.

WATCH IT, DICK! THAT STONE! DON'T STUMBLE!

OH...OH! WHY DID I EVER LET NICK AND BRAD PULL THIS STUNT!

HEY! I SLIPPED!

AGAIN DICK IS SAVED BY THE CRIMSON SHIRT, WHICH IS TORN FROM HIS HAND AS THE BULL CHARGES BY HIM.

WHEW! HE DIDN'T GET ME THAT TIME... JUST THE SHIRT. BUT I...UH...UCK-HO! HERE HE COMES AGAIN!

DICK'S MAKING FOR THE BARBED WIRE FENCE ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE FIELD. HE'LL HAVE TO JUMP IT! OH, GOSH, I HOPE HE CAN MAKE IT!

ATTABOY, DICK! YOU MADE IT! YOU'RE OKAY NOW!

GREAT GRIEF! HE'S GOING BACK AFTER WILL! AND WILL CAN'T WALK! I'LL HAVE TO MAKE THE BULL CHARGE ME AGAIN! HO, BULL, HO! HERE!

SEIZING SOME ROCKS, DICK HURLS THEM AFTER THE BULL AND REGISTERS HITS!

CRAWL AWAY FAST, WILL! IT'S YOUR LAST CHANCE! HURRY! MAKE YOURSELF SCARCE WHILE HE'S AFTER ME! HERE HE COMES!

THE SNORTING ANIMAL CHARGES SO FAST, DICK CAN'T RETREAT.

LOOK AT THE KID! HE JUMPED RIGHT OVER THAT CRAZY BULL! I'VE SEEN EVERYTHING NOW!

OSCAR'S RIGHT ON HIS HEELS! HERE THEY COME... BUT FAST! ROPE HIM, LINK... ROPE HIM!

OKAY, BOSS! HERE GOES!

YIP-PEE! RIGHT OUT OF A RODEO! YEAH, COWBOY!

QUESTION No. 4. How high can a man jump to clear an obstacle like Oscar?

LATER,

ROOM.

right from the HORSE'S MOUTH

by Mickey Klar Marks

IT shows you how a person or an animal can be misjudged. Now take Flip O'Conner, for instance, the lad from New York who spent his vacation here on the ranch last summer. He misjudged me. My name's Stampede and I'm a horse and a real good horse with sense.

A whole crew of young folks came out from the city, fellows and girls around your age, I should imagine, ready to go western in a big way. Diana, she's my boss's daughter and prettier than a week old filly, was standing near the corral when the bus pulled up in front of the ranch house. She was chewing a piece of grass, and I could see she was madder than a wet hen.

"City dudes," she muttered. "Same kind with new faces, boasting they can out-ride anyone, messing up the ranch. Gosh, Stampede," she patted my nose just the way I like it, "I wish we didn't run a dude ranch. Look at them." She pointed towards two boys who had just swung off the bus and were looking around.

Now I couldn't tell her that they looked nice, especially one of them. He was kind of tall and had thick brown hair and a nice grin, and you could tell right off he was a right guy. Now the other—well, I don't want to get ahead of my story.

Mr. Peters, the boss, was greeting them. He sighted Diana and strolled towards her, the two boys in tow.

"Diana, meet Flip O'Conner and Jack Adams," he said, and then he walked off.

"Hi," the feller named Jack said.

"Hello, Jack and Flip." She smiled, especially at the latter.

"How do you do," Flip said. I knew that boy looked nice right off. Manners are important.

"Nice piece of horse-flesh," Jack said as he eyed me.

I shuddered. If there's anything I can't stand it's being referred to as horse-flesh. As if someone were looking at a piece of beef in a butcher shop.

"Can't wait to get into my riding clothes and go for a real run," Jack said to Diana. "I ride a lot home."

"You ride well?" Diana asked.

"Well," the boy blushed, with false modesty, (even I could see that,) "haven't had a horse too tough for me yet."

I made up my mind to change that at the first opportunity and then realized, of course, it was out of my hands. I was Diana's horse and no one else was allowed to ride me. Excuse me while I laugh, but they can't ride me for two reasons. One, because Diana wouldn't let them, and two, because I wouldn't either.

"Do you ride much?" Diana turned to Flip.

"I try. I'm just a beginner but I intend to change that out here if I can. I've always loved horses." His eyes strayed around the corral and you could see he meant what he said.

"Those things come naturally," Jack boasted. "Take me—I've a natural seat."

Mr. Peters came over just then and said, "By the way, we're having a welcome dance tonight and you'd better make your dates early."

"Diana, would you . . ."

By George, don't you think both those fellows didn't start asking Diana for the dance pronto.

"Line forms to your right," Diana laughed.

"Cut a rug with me," Jack high-pressured.

"How about tossing a coin?" Flip suggested.

"I asked her first!"

"No, you didn't," Diana corrected. "You both asked together. Now let me see."

I knew she didn't have to think. I could see right off, Flip was the one she wanted to date. But she was hostess and had to play fair. "I'll tell you what, I'll pick a horse, and the one who rides him around the corral twice gets to take me to the dance."

Now there's something about mutual understanding. I knew I was going to be that horse and I knew Diana knew I'd know what to do.

Jack laughed victoriously. After all, he was supposed to be the expert rider. "That lets you out, brother," he said to Flip. "Better luck next time."

Flip looked down at the mouth. "When do we ride and who?"

"After lunch," Diana said, "and you'll ride Stampede."

"Which mule is that?" Jack said, and I chalked another black mark against him.

I knew Diana was getting ready to point me out, so I went into my act. Let me tell you, there's nothing about hucking, arching, biting and rolling I don't know. When I looked up I could see that Jack had lost a good deal of his confidence, but Flip, although he looked scared, was still game.

"Th-that horse?" Jack stuttered.

"Best horse on the place," Diana said. "Why worry, Jack? You're a good rider."

"Yeah, sure," he gulped.

Diana started off with Jack beside her. Flip waited by the fence, looking at me.

"You're sure a honey, Stampede," he said. "Wish I could ride you. Maybe I ought to put glue on my pants." He laughed ruefully. "But then Diana wants to go with Jack anyway—he's hep, otherwise she would have chosen a milder animal for us to ride."

What could I say? I wanted to reassure him, but of course none of you people understand horse talk.

Later, Diana, Jack, and Flip came down to the corral.

Diana came in first with the saddle, murmuring, "Easy boy, easy boy." I acted pettish. I snorted and tossed my head and pranced around a little for effect, but I let her saddle me easy enough. Then she told Jack to come in.

Jack came. I could see he was green and his smile was sickly. Boy, I fixed that bag of wind when he tried to mount me. Every time he put his foot in the stirrup, I skittered away. He was jittery as a jitterbug when finally I permitted him on my back.

Then what do you think he says to me? "Giddap!" To me, a thoroughbred. I giddapped all right. I took him around that ring just once, faster than greased lightning and doing a special rumba of my own. Then I twisted, and tossed him as neatly as a chef tosses a green salad. The "plunk" as he landed on the hard ground echoed against the hills.

Diana was ready to burst but she didn't dare show it.

"I thought you said you could ride?" she said as she ran to help him to his feet.

"That horse isn't even broken yet," he shouted angrily.

"He happens to be perfectly trained," Diana replied coldly. "I'm afraid you'll need some lessons while you're here. Come on, Flip, you're next."

Flip was the gamest kid I ever saw. I knew he thought he was going to be dumped, but he walked up to me as calm as you please and put his foot in one stirrup, but I stood stock-still, and he couldn't have been more surprised when he found himself on my back.

"Thanks, pal," he said. "All I ask, boy, is—toss me easy."

He pulled on my reins gently and, like the well-mannered horse I am (when not provoked), I trotted easily round that corral like a wooden horse on a merry-go-round.

Diana winked at me, looked up at Flip and said, "Well, I'm your date."

"Hey, you were holding out!" Jack shouted to Flip, as he stood near the fence. "You knew how to ride all the time."

"Not any better than you," Diana said.

"Well, maybe I did kind of boast," Jack admitted.

* * *

Well, that was a year ago. Flip really did think I was wild at first but then he learned better. He's coming back again this year and Diana is looking forward to seeing him. They've been writing to one another all year and, who knows, maybe in a couple of years—but that would be another story.
